Some discuss old businesses they fostered of computers and technology. Dan had been one grandfather of the Cleveland tech revolution. Some told how their childhood contributed to their evolution. Some relate their dreams for Cleveland's future and our prayer that she regains her former greatness.

After 35 speeches, some grow listless. A few even try to sneak out. Dan won't allow that. He insists they offer some wisdom before escaping.

Some 56 have spoken. Now my turn.

"I have 6 points to present, three of sadness and three of hope." I warn my audience.

"Our area faces 3 serious challenges. First is the statistic I read this week that one out of four of our students are chronically absent from school. How disheartening when you think of children in other lands who would give anything to attend our schools.

"The second sad number is half of our children fight losing battles against the two enemies of fatness and worse, obesity "More exercise, less sweets—here is our victory recipe."
