

International Student Workshops at Cleveland State University

Global Cleveland and Cleveland State University are partnering on a series of international student workshops focused on job search skills to help prepare international students for careers after graduation. The workshops are aimed to develop networking and interviewing skills.

The networking reception taking place on Wednesday, October 28th will be led by Global Cleveland and CSU's Graduate Student Resource Center to give international graduate students the opportunity to learn more about interviewing and professional networking in Cleveland, as well as give the students more guidance on how to properly engage with professionals in the area.

Global Cleveland volunteers will also attend and talk about their networking experiences in Cleveland. Immediately following the workshop is a monthly #Welcome2Cleveland reception at Santorini's Greek Taverna. Global Cleveland is partnering with International Partners in Mission and the reception is a great opportunity for students to practice their networking skills with IPM staff, board members from around the world, and Global Cleveland volunteers.

Then, on Tuesday, November 3rd, Global Cleveland will return to CSU for an interviewing workshop with the Center for International Services and Programs (CISP). This workshop will consist of mock interviews, followed by informal feedback and Q&A. The mock-interviewing portion will be set up similar to a 'speed-dating' scenario, where the students will be able to practice their skills with Global Cleveland volunteers who have experience in human resources, career development, or are employers at strategic businesses that correlate to the students' majors. Spots are still available for mock interviewers! If you are interested or know anyone who would be interested in connecting with international students please email Alyssa Golinar at alyssa@global-cleveland.org

These programs are important to Global Cleveland and Cleveland State University international students because we believe these workshops will lead to students making connections with employers and enhance their networking and interviewing skills as they find potential careers and opportunities for a future in Cleveland.

Southwest to end nonstop flights to Florida, Las Vegas from Akron-Canton Airport

Southwest Airlines in mid-April will end all nonstop service from Akron-Canton Airport to Florida and a nonstop route to Las Vegas that has yet to begin.

Flights to Tampa, Fort Myers and Orlando will be eliminated. The Las Vegas service is set to begin Nov. 15 and only will last five months.

That makes Hartsfield-Jackson International Airport in Atlanta the only airport Southwest will fly to directly from Akron-Canton. So in mid-April, the airline will bump up its service to Hartsfield-Jackson to three nonstop flights a day. From there, passengers can connect to more than 100 cities throughout the Southwest network, including in Mexico and the Caribbean.

The changes take place April 12, and until then the flights won't be affected, according to Kristie VanAuken, senior vice president and chief marketing communications officer at Akron-Canton Airport.

VanAuken said airport officials will work with other carriers to add service to the Florida destinations. They will even approach Southwest down the road to perhaps change its service.

"These are very successful markets," she said. "(The flights) were really full, and we feel there's great market potential."

Allegiant Air already offers service from Akron-Canton to Fort Myers and the Tampa-St. Petersburg area, she said. And while airport officials will look to bolster that service, they will really turn their attention to establishing service to Orlando, which she said is a key popular market.

Las Vegas is a popular destination, she said, but is a bit more difficult because of the distance, but airport officials will approach other carriers about service to the Sin City.

"While this news is disappointing for us, we are glad that Southwest will continue to provide access to its low-fares and exceptional customer service via Atlanta," said Rick McQueen, president and CEO at Akron-Canton, in a prepared statement. "Southwest is one of five successful airlines serving CAK, so there are still many options for travelers seeking low-fares, nonstop flights and global connectivity."
