

(上、下圖)9 月 20-26 日,我去了紐約和費城,我在費城會見了安良工商會老前輩彭偉權先生, 我希望他們的房產投資公司能來克利夫蘭看看,費城的中國城很有規模,而克利夫蘭有老的唐人街和 3 個有規模的超市,以及幾家飯店和其它店鋪,彭偉權先生說願意來克利夫蘭看看,期待他們的投資。

彭偉權先生是老一輩的在美國的成功華人, 他是商人更是華人社團的領袖人物, 他說東方亮西方亮才能照進我們每個人的心亮。千百年來世界四分五裂,戰爭給每一個家庭和個人都帶來了災難,人們內心期待和平安定。

彭偉權先生對我說:人生如夢,一晃到美國 50 多年。勤奮刻苦創業到守業,他想的都是東方,他的超市名字和飯店的名字都是東方,在他的心里是崛起的東方。他堅定不移孫中山先生的理念,每一個人都希望生活安定和諧,老一輩留給我們年輕一代很多的智慧。

(上圖) 克利夫蘭亞洲商場的負責人是 Steven Hom, 他們家族早年就擁有了這個商場。Steven 先生兢兢業業管着這個商場,他話語不多,但總是面帶笑容。那天他正在打理百佳超市前面的要出租的餐廳,他說,原來已經租下的餐廳,因為

Boris Oicherman named Cleveland Foundation program director for arts & culture

Curator, artist and engineer joins the foundation team today

CLEVELAND (Sept. 19, 2022) – Following a national search, the Cleveland Foundation is pleased to announce that Boris Oicherman, Ph.D. will join the foundation as program director for arts & culture, effective today (Sept. 19). Oicherman comes to Cleveland from the Weisman Art Museum, University of Minnesota Twin Cities, where he was the inaugural Cindy and Jay Ihlenfeld Curator for Creative Collaboration.

“Boris brings a truly unique set of skills to the Cleveland Foundation’s program team,” said India Pierce Lee, Cleveland Foundation senior vice president for program. “As an artist, museum curator and engineer, his distinctive perspective will have a tremendous impact on the Northeast Ohio arts community.”

In his role at the Weisman, Oicherman established and led a new program that supports collaborative practices in the arts. He pioneered innovative curatorial practices that prioritize inclusion, access and the long-term transformative potential of art. Over the course of his five-year tenure, Oicherman spearheaded a strategic direction in support of culturally diverse initiatives that transcend disciplines, media and sectors while combining visual arts, academic research, crafts, activism, Indigenous knowledge, music, creative writing and performance. Combined with an intentional, focused outreach to artists working in and with communities underserved by the museum, and investment in long-term relationship building, his strategy resulted in uniquely inclusive, sustainable and community-engaged museum programming.

Prior to his time in Minneapolis, Oicherman was an artist specializing in site-specific installation and performance, interdisciplinary collaboration, public art and social sculpture. (oicherman.art) He has created more than 50 site-specific works, participated in international artist residencies in Israel, South Korea, Poland, Spain, Croatia, Bulgaria, and the United Kingdom, and received multiple production and research grants for his work.

Oicherman is also a color scientist. He conducted research for the Hewlett Packard Laboratories, Indigo Electronic Printing Systems and other corporations, registering twelve U.S. and international patents in his field. Oicherman’s educational background includes an M.S. in digital color imaging from the University of the Arts London, a Ph.D. in color science from the Leeds University and an M.F.A. in arts practice from Stanford University.

Oicherman will be joined in Cleveland by his partner, Katya, a curator, artist and researcher of textiles; and their son, Michael.
